

The first patient diagnosed with Middle East Respiratory Syndrome (MERS) in Thailand has been declared free of the infectious virus, as well as the other twenty people who had contact with the first patient. This indicates that Thailand' is successful in effective control, surveillance, and prevention of the disease. (30/6/2015)

---